CONSTITUTION DAY OBSERVED AT WEST SIDE SILK MILL

The management of the West Side Silk mill observed the National Constitution Day at the noon hour Friday. The employees assembled in the canteen recreation room recently fitted up after the singing of patriotic songs, by request of the management, Secretary Edwin Hill of the local Y. M. C. A. made a brief address on Americanism, and among other things said that the duties and responsibilities in every realm of life; unless there is in the home some sort of rules and regulations written or unwritten, the home would go to smash. The parents must discharge their duties as heads of the home or things go wrong. The same thing is true in a factory; rules and regulations are absolutely necessary. The heads of the factory must have fair and proper rules, and then see to it that they are observed. So with a nation, there must be well defined laws else the building of a stable government is impossible. About three hundred years ago, a little country set sail from distant shores, and after a long and tedious voyage, landed at Plymouth Rock. The first thing they did was to formulate a code of laws, which was really a covenant, and after agreeing to the code they solemnly promised to observe the laws they had made. One hundred and sixty seven years afterward certain men in our beloved America, after much thought and discussion, and prayer adopted our Constitution, which though containing many more words than the simple covenant made by the Pilgrim fathers, is in essence the same in spirit.

"The Constitution is shot through with the thought of just laws and obedience to the same. We often say this is a free country, but that does not mean that man can do as he pleases, and regard to the other fellow; if this was a free country in that sense anarchy would ruin us speedily. We are free to do as we please so long as we do not interfere in any way with the happiness of others. A good motto for the home, the factory and for the country is 'others,' and if we all lived in the spirit of this motto, there would be no trouble in the home, there would be no strikes, and there would be no such terrible happenings as that which occurred Thursday in New York city. Jesus Christ laid down a law, and that law is really the spirit of our Constitution when he said 'whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do so even unto them.' In other words, the 'Golden Rule' is the only rule that can successfully govern the home, the factory or the nation."

After the address, the employees and management joined heartily in singing "America."

SUPERIOR COURT TO HOLD SATURDAY SESSION

In order to reach a verdict speedily in the trial of Gustave J. Evans, the Groton jilney driver, in the superior court here today Judge George J. H. Hinman told the jury when court adjourned Friday afternoon that he should require the jury to come back this (Saturday) morning at 10 o'clock. At that time the attorneys will continue their arguments before the jury.

The evidence in the case was all in at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and both sides made the first argument for the prosecution closing at 4.20, when Judge Hinman adjourned the court.

The two attorneys for the accused, Arthur T. Keefe and John C. Geary, will make their arguments today and will be followed by State Attorney Hull, who will close for the state.

Mr. Evans, the accused, who was driven to the jail here on the evening of the morning of July 21, when three of his passengers were thrown out and killed, was the last witness which the defense put on the stand Friday afternoon.

Charles J. Evans, brother of the accused, told the jury that he did not observe a police officer on Thames street and that he was driving at a rate of speed of not more than 25 miles an hour. When the car reached a point on Thames street where there is a curve, Evans declared that one of two passengers on the front seat grabbed the steering wheel, causing the car to speed to the other side of the street and crash into the tree, resulting in the death of Michael Francis, James McKerrick and Peggy Wentworth.

Four New London police officers testified during the afternoon to seeing the jilney at the restaurant, where Evans did not show any signs of intoxication, but that Francis, one of the trio killed, was intoxicated and attempted to attack a naval officer.

CITY MEETING VOTES FOR CLIFF STREET EXTENSION

The special city meeting on Friday evening in the town hall took but a few minutes to vote in the affirmative on the petition of Angelle Covello and 23 other voters for a special appropriation of $1,200 for the improvement of about 225 feet of Cliff street extension, where Mr. Covello has a dwelling house.

About 35 men were present when Mayor Lerou presided over the meeting. Mr. H. M. Lett called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock and Clerk William St. Frisbie read the warning for the meeting.

Judge Henry H. Pettis presented a motion favoring the appropriation and spoke in advocacy of it. He said this part of the street had been laid out as a private way about 18 years ago, but it was not recorded in the town records and would be a nuisance to the city. There are seven or eight houses on the street, of which four front on the section which is now proposed to improve, and there are lots enough remaining on it to put in 15 or 20 homes more, so that it would be a chance for the city to encourage a building, of which so much is heard today. He predicted that more homes would be built and that the improvement made for these were good citizens who intend to stay in the city.

Frank L. Arnold asked to have City Engineer Shepard L. Palmer explain the layout and wanted to have the matter inquired into. He said that he had heard what Mr. Palmer had to say. The engineer explained that the street was laid out 48 feet wide, there was some rock-cutting to be done, and that the improvement would reach about 25 feet beyond Mr. Covello's house. Mr. Arnold opposed the matter because it benefited but one property owner, as he said the other residents resented their homes from North Main street.

Mayor Lerou spoke in approval of the appropriation, saying he believed it was a move in the right direction, it was not money that was asked for and that the petitioners represented good Italian citizens who obey the laws and are desirable residents. He believed they would build more homes as they had said they would.

On motion of Mr. Pettis, the vote was taken by the clerk casting one ballot, and the same was done in a motion offered by Mr. Pettis to have the city treasurer to borrow the money.

This concluded the business and the meeting adjourned.

RANDALL POWELLSON ESCAPED

INJURY IN MORGAN BUILDING

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Powellson of 29 Warren street have heard from their son, Randall, that he was in the J. P. Morgan & Co. building in Wall street on Thursday at the time of the terrific bomb explosion, but he escaped unhurt. Mr. Powellson telephoned to his parents Thursday afternoon to assure them that he was safe.

At the time of the explosion, he said, he was on the fourth floor of the building, but not at his desk. When he returned to his desk he found it littered with broken plate glass, and he was very lucky to be away from it at the time the bomb went off.

Mr. Powellson has been with the Morgan firm for the last five years, having charge of a division of the export department.

In a letter she received here on Friday she stated that the news was a frightful one and that the reports of the explosion and the results were in no instance exaggerated.
